

Geese

The same render account for 7 geese bought. Of which in expenses of the lord steward 3. And 4 remain.

Hens

The same render account for 10 hens received from rent. Of which in expenses of the steward 2. Sold as above 8. And none remain.

Ploughshares

The same render account for 1 ploughshare received from Walter de Moles. And for 3 bought as above. Of which paid to the abbot of Chertsey for the manor of Northwode 2. And in expenses of ploughing 2.

Pepper

The same render account for $\frac{1}{2}$ pound pepper bought as above. All in payment to Hugh de Brigeford for the annual recognition that is owed to him.

Larder

The same render account for 4 oxen, 3 cows put into the larder. In expenses of the lord elect for his coming to Esher 6 carcasses of beef, by tally against Bartholomew, larderer. And 1 carcass remains. Likewise they render account for 20 pigs put into the larder. And for $9\frac{1}{2}$ bacons that were sent to the cook at Esher. Of which sent to Southwark for the lord elect 10. In expenses of the same for his coming to Esher 9 bacons, by tally against Bartholomew, larderer. And in expenses of Master John de Lye and his family $\frac{1}{2}$ bacon. And in expenses of the steward around the Purification [2 February] $\frac{1}{2}$ bacon. In expenses of the hayward hired at Northwode $1\frac{1}{2}$ bacons. And thus 8 bacons remain.

Cheese

The same render account for 131 cheeses made beginning on the Wednesday before the feast of St Augustine [22 May] and finishing on the day of St Michael, namely the day of account. Sum 131 cheeses. Of which in tithe 13. In expenses for harvest at Northwode and at Esher 11. In mowing the meadow 2. Sold as above 105, which made 1 wey and 1 quarter of a hundredweight and 3 stone. Sum 131 cheeses. And none remain and this year they had so little from cheese because the cows were delayed coming from Ivinghoe as above.

7. c. 29 September 1252 to c. 29 September 1253

The development of the manorial centre, its immediate surroundings, and the expansion of the arable and pastoral sectors of the demesne economy must have entailed a considerable reorganisation of the landscape in this part of Esher and at Northwode. The account for 1252/3 gives a sense of several elements of this: land was set aside for a new, enclosed, warren; meadow and pasture were enclosed; and a large number of gates and locks, some at the manorial centre but others for areas of woodland or meadow, were made or mended. As this suggests, the seignorial elements in the landscape were designated as separate and private. Even access to the traditional site for the hundred court of Elmbridge was now blocked by a bank. This physical separation of the lord's property was perhaps symbolised above all by the 'great gate before the hall', for which a big key was bought for the main gate, through which carts would presumably have been able to pass, together with another key for its side gate, for people on foot. Such new divisions and barriers in the landscape are unlikely to have been received with universal equanimity and there is a real sense in this account, and in other accounts from the early 1250s, of the bishop having to enforce the boundaries that he had put in place: 11 tenants were fined 'for transgressing in the pasture' in 1252/3; during the following two years a further 14 fines were issued for the same misdemeanour.¹⁰⁰ This account also reveals how the realities of manorial and estate administration precipitated a number of other readjustments: the bishop sent out a number of letters from Esher that were carried to their destinations by customary tenants, though the auditors chastised the reeve for providing these tenants with bread; likewise a warrener was employed to look after 'the warren, woods, fields, and pastures', but the auditors argued that this should not be necessary because it was part of the bailiff's job. Indeed, we are even informed that lighter cart wheels had to be bought for a horse that 'was not able to draw the wheels with iron tyres', the latter being banded with iron to reduce wear and tear and extend the range over which laden carts could travel.¹⁰¹

41½ acres at Esher and at Northwode by the perch 10 quarters 2 bushels. In removing manure by works 3 bushels. In customary payment to harrowers in spring 2 bushels. In customary payment for shearing 1 bushel. In carrying writs, namely six pairs of letters from the lord elect, to London, to the bailiff, and to Master R, the bishop's official, two pairs for Lord G, steward, and one pair of letters to Farnham 1 bushel. In expenses of harvest 2½ quarters. Sold as above 7 quarters. In customary payment for mowing the meadows ½ quarter.

Barley

The same render account for 12½ quarters from the total issue of barley of the demesne. And for 45 quarters of barley bought. And 2 bushels.¹¹⁶ Sum 57½ quarters 2 bushels. Of which in seed for 27½ acres by the perch 13 quarters 2 bushels. In payment of one ploughman and one oxherd for the year 13 quarters.¹¹⁷ In payment of one ploughman for 12 weeks in spring 1½ quarters. In payment of one oxherd for the same time 1 quarter 1 bushel. In payment of two shepherds for the year 10 quarters 3 bushels. In payment of one guardian of the lambs for 23 weeks 2 quarters 2 bushels. In payment of one dairymaid from the feast of St Michael until Christmas and from the middle of Lent [28 March] until the feast of St Michael 3½ quarters 2 bushels, namely for 38 weeks. In payment of one warrener from the Sunday next after Epiphany [12 January] until the feast of St Michael, namely for 37 weeks, 3½ quarters 1 bushel, because the warrener had nothing before Christmas. In payment of one cowherd for the year 5 quarters 1 bushel. In payment of one harrower at sowing time 1 quarter. In payment of one swineherd for five weeks in harvest ½ quarter. In removing manure by customary work 3 bushels. In harvest expenses 2 quarters.

Oats

The same render account for 33½ quarters from the total issue of oats. Of which in seed for 26 acres at Esher by the perch. And for 30 acres at Northwode by the perch 30½ quarters. In flour 1 quarter. In expenses of Lord G, steward, for two visits 1 quarter. Sold as above 1 quarter.

Beans

The same render account for 5 bushels from the total issue of beans. Of which in seed 3 bushels. Sold as above 2 bushels.

Peas

The same render account for 7 bushels from the total issue of peas. Of which in seed ½ quarter. In expenses of harvest 1 bushel. Sold as above 2 bushels.

Stock

The same render account for 4 affers that remained from the past year. And they remain, of which 2 are male and 2 female.

¹¹⁶ As listed above under 'Corn bought' and 'Expenses of harvest', this was also bought.

¹¹⁷ An oxherd, in this instance, drove the plough team; he is usually described as a ploughdriver.

Foals

The same render account for 1 foal that remained from the past year. And 1 foal remains.

Oxen

The same render account for 12 oxen that remained from the past year. And 12 oxen remain.

Cows

The same render account for 10 cows that remained from the past year. And for 6 bought with calves. And for 1 owing from the heriot of John before calving. Sum 17. Of which sold as above 1 before calving. And 16 cows remain.

Bulls

The same render account for 1 bull coming from East Meon. And 1 bull remains.

Calves

The same render account for 5 calves born of the cows this year, because 5 [cows] were barren. And for 6 bought. Sum 11. Of which in murrain 1, the sum for the pelt of which they answer for. And 10 calves remain.

Ewes

The same render account for 66 ewes bought. And for 42 maturing that came from Farnham. Sum 108. Of which in murrain before giving birth and before shearing 5. After shearing 3. Sum 8. And 100 ewes remain.

Wethers

The same render account for 180¹¹⁸ wethers that remained from the past year. And for 45 maturing that came from Farnham. Sum 244. Of which in murrain before shearing 4. After shearing 3. In customary payment for mowing the meadow 1, after shearing. Sum 8. And 236 remain. Of which 3 are rams.

Hoggets

The same answer for 99¹¹⁹ hoggets that remained from the past year. Of which in murrain before shearing 12. Maturing into ewes 42. And into wethers 45. Sum 99. And none remain.

Lambs

The same answer for 34 lambs coming from maturing stock, because 3 [ewes] were barren.¹²⁰ And for 66 bought with the ewes. And for 150 lambs received from East Meon before shearing. Sum 250. Of which in tithe 3. In murrain before weaning 6.

¹¹⁸ This is a scribal error: judging by numbers remaining in the last account and the sum of wethers received in this paragraph, this should be '199'. In MS, the scribe wrote 'C iij^x'; he neglected to follow this with 'xix'.

¹¹⁹ This includes 50 ewes that were already categorised as ewes in the preceding account.

¹²⁰ In other words, these 34 lambs were born to the ewes that matured from gimmers; of the 42 gimmers that matured into ewes, 5 died before they gave birth and 3 were barren.

And after shearing 23, the sum from the pelts of which [is answered for]. Sum 32. And 218 remain.

Pigs

The same render account for 2 pigs that remained from the past year. And for 48 bought. And for 1 sow with 8 piglets bought. Sum 59. Of which to the larder 2. And 57 pigs remain \of which 2 sows and 47/ male pigs of over a year. And 8 piglets.

Cheese

The same render account for 36 cheeses made in winter. All sold as above. Likewise, the same render account for 156 cheeses which were begun on the Sunday next after the feast of St George [27 April] and were finished on the day of St Michael, namely the day of account. Of which in tithe 15. In customary payment for mowing the meadow 1. In customary payment of the dairymaid 1. In expenses of harvest 16, which made $\frac{1}{2}$ a wey. Sold as above 122, which made 5 weys. And 1 cheese remains, worth 3d, for which the reeve is charged again.

Fleeces

The same render account for 343 coarse fleeces coming from the ewes and wethers. Of which in tithe for 277 fleeces 27. Sold as above 314, which made $2\frac{1}{2}$ weys and 4 cloves. And 2 fleeces remain, worth 5d, for which the reeve will answer. The same render account for 241 fleeces of lambs' wool. Sold with all the coarse wool, which made $\frac{1}{2}$ wey and 1 clove.

Carcasses

The same render account for the carcass of 1 ox that remained from the past year. All used in expenses of the lord's famuli, and nothing remains.

Bacon

The same render account for 8 bacons that remained from the past year, which were from the lord's stock. And for 2 bacons this year. Sum 10. Of which in expenses of the lord 8. In expenses of harvest $1\frac{1}{2}$ bacons. And $\frac{1}{2}$ a bacon remains.

Hens

The same render account for 10 hens owing from rent. Of which in expenses of Lord G, steward, 3. Sold as above 7. And none remain.

Peacocks

The same render account for 2 peacocks that remained from the past year. And for 2 peacocks coming from the parson of Walton. Sum 4. Of which sent to London by order of Lord G, steward, 2. And 2 peacocks remain.

Geese

The same render account for 4 geese that remained from the past year. And 4 remain.

Ploughshares

The same render account for 1 ploughshare received from Walter de Moles for 2 acres of land that he holds from the lord. And for 2 ploughshares bought. Of which paid in payment to the abbot of Chertsey 2 for the rent of Northwode. In ploughing expenses 1. And none remain.

8. c. 29 September 1257 to c. 29 September 1258

Although badly torn, this account provides fascinating glimpses of the manor of Esher in a number of contexts, ranging from the lives and concerns of the peasantry to the decisions made by those running the manorial demesne, to examples of the manor in wider economic, political, and environmental settings. It was a momentous year for the unfree tenant Walter de Wexford: he had taken over as reeve in September 1257, a post he was to retain (in all but one documented year) until September 1273; his daughter was to be married; and he bought a parcel of former demesne land 'to make a messuage'. Although we cannot be certain, it seems likely that this new messuage was intended for the newlyweds; notably, as former demesne land, they would have held it freely. Walter's first year as reeve was challenging for a number of reasons, not least because there seems to have been a concerted labour strike,¹²¹ with a number of unfree peasants withholding their ploughing services and withdrawing from the lord's work before the appointed hour; it is perhaps for this reason that, later in the agricultural year, customary harvest workers were, for the first time, provided with milk pudding as well as the usual savoury foodstuffs. The reeve, in conjunction with other manorial and estate officials, also made a number of significant decisions over the course of the year: most notably, the size of the sheep flock was increased by several hundred, bringing in more money from sales of wool and cheese, but also boosting the fertility of the relatively poor soils that had been cultivated by the demesne for the past ten years. The sheep were purchased at a fair, plausibly one granted just a few years earlier at Hinton Charterhouse (Somerset).¹²² Not all of these sheep were destined for the fields of Esher, for 400 (along with 4 oxen) were sent to Ham; as other entries in the account indicate, they may well have been intended as a gift for Henry III. The year 1258 was a calamitous one for the king, a group of barons forcing him to accept a different style of government, but it was to prove disastrous for many peasants as well. The Esher account notes in passing that 'summer time was a rainy period'; in fact, this was 'a year without a summer' and crop yields appear to have been devastated. It is currently believed that these weather conditions were the result of a dust veil thrown out by the eruption of an Indonesian volcano.¹²³

HRO, 11M59/B1/28, rot 22r, 22v.

¹²¹ For the use of this term and discussion of its ramifications, see Faith, 'Class struggle'.

¹²² The name of the fair is unfortunately torn, but in the previous year sheep had been bought at the fair of Hinton Charterhouse. The fact that money to buy sheep in 1257/8 was provided by the reeve of the bishop's manor of Taunton suggests that the same fair may have been visited again: HRO, 11M59/B1/27; Letters, Online gazetteer of markets and fairs [Somerset]; Page, ed., Victoria history of Somerset, II, pp. 118–23.
